FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:
January 23, 2006

Is the next Mozart among us? WRR's auditions to feature classically-trained kids in two shows this weekend

IT'S WRR'S version of "American Idol"--*classical style!

Mozart was six when he wooed Europe with his classical genius...Lang Lang was five when he performed his first piano concert. Could the next child prodigy be here in North Texas?

WRR Classical 101.1 FM will present two exciting FREE audition shows this weekend for local youths, ages 8-18. Each program will include 15 young performers selected from stacks of applications submitted by kids from all over North Texas. WRR will record each performance and forward it to "From the Top," a nationally-syndicated weekly radio program for classically-trained youths. "From the Top" airs locally 9 a.m. Saturdays on WRR.

"These young people will not be playing 'Chopsticks'" WRR general manager Greg Davis said. "We're talking about children who have competed in international piano competitions and nine-year-olds who are composing classical music for competition. WRR's audition shows offer a wonderfully opportunity for North Texans to see and hear some truly gifted young performers."

The FREE, family-oriented audition shows will be:

- 2 p.m., Saturday, January 28 at Steinway Hall in Fort Worth, 3717 Camp Bowie Boulevard at Montgomery in the Cultural Arts District.
- 2 p.m., Sunday, January 29 at the Meadows Museum at 5900 Bishop Boulevard on the SMU campus.

The public and media are invited.
